"Sumzine is a biannual slow-fashion zine based out of NYC. We carry the torch of Dame Westwood, "Buy less, choose well, make it last!" Not your typical sustainability-loving, fashion editorial magazine. We wanted to put aside that "go green hippiness" and bring in the cool, New York City downtown chic vibes."

The design of Sumzine is vibrant and bold, with a mixture of earthy feels. Since Sumzine's theme changes with every issue, we wanted to keep the branding and design simple, clean, constant and versatile. "

Design Direction | Nikki Mirsaeid

Format | Softcover Magazine, 8.5 x 11". Edition of 100. 39 pages.

Editor in Chief | Jamie Ortega

Collaborators | Features include interviews with Brian Procell, Osei-Duro, #jacques-Elliott, and XXBC. Essays by Rachel Hodin and Jamie Ortega. Photography from Adam Katz Sinding, Nekole Kemelle, Shanita Sims, Koa Pennock, Ruvan Wijesooriya, and James Parker. Illustrations by Jonah Leslie.

Altar Exhibitions is a non-stationary curatorial project by Nikki Mirsaeid and Taj Robinson; funded by Southern Exposure Alternative Exposure grant. The project seeks to locate unconventional spaces as exhibition venues. Place such as, but not limited to, an Episcopal church, a vacant gas station, an abandoned storefront, and so on. They cultivated a community of artists that go beyond the confines of the gallery environment and activate unrealized territory. Altar Exhibitions insists on reappropriating space--making theretofore inaccessible space reachable. Altar Exhibitions are never contained between four white walls. Instead, their locales are fundamental lenses for reading and connecting to objects, installations, and performances.

Collaborator | Taj Robinson

Artists | Johnny Abrahams, Facundo Arganaraz, Emily Verlo Bovino, Aaron Finnis, Bryan Morello, Kamau Patton (_TELL), Melissa Sachs, Tim Sullivan, Aaron Wacks & Miquel Serra (_GALLS), Andrew Norman Wilson

Responsibility | Organize Exhibition. Grant Writing.
